Sunflower seed is recommended as food for poultry. It gives a glossy appearance to the plumage, is excellent for stimulating the production of eggs, and fowls are fond of it. A Russian variety has lately been introduced into this country which is remarkable for the size of its flowers. Specimens of it exhibited in Philadelphia measured eighteen to twenty inches in diameter.

"MAKE A VACANCY, OR I WILL."

During the late administration of Grant there chanced to be a young man in one of the departments, who, like so many others then and now, had entered on the horrible declivity which begins with the gilded tippling-saloon and ends—who shall say where? He was a capable clerk, and his sprees were condoned for the sake of the memory of his honored father, Senator——. But the road was sure; and in time, with a discharge in his pocket and a drunkard's record behind him, step by step he passed down the grade of dissipation, until wife, children and friends cut loose, and the quondam gentleman slept in the parks and lived on charity. He was abandoned by all—all save the angel of mercy hovering near, though unseen. A temperance reform movement claimed him as a trophy, and he began the upward struggle. Wife and children came back; but who believes in a "reformed drunkard?" It was a struggle for years to find bread for the little ones, but he fought bravely, and, disappointing those who looked for his failure, he held on, and even saved others from going over the precipice. President Grant, who had known his father, heard of his struggle and sent for him. Congratulating him on his reform, he said:

"I want to help you; what can I do?"

"I want work," was the reply.

"You shall have it. Where would you prefer to go—in new scenes or old?"

The young man said: "Send me, sir, where I left a blackened record. It may encourage others if I regain a good name, and I would be more useful in my former position."

The President wrote a note to the Secretary of that Department and handed it to the young man, who left, but ere long returned with an anxious face.

"The Secretary sent out word that my application would go on file."

The President, with an iron-clad expletive, said: "You can't put your wife and children on file, can you?" Writing another note and handing it to him he said: "Give this in person and bring me an answer." Armed with this missive he confronted the awful presence beyond the baize doors and met an impatient refusal.

"What shall I tell the President?" he calmly inquired.

"That there are no vacancies."

When this was delivered at the White House the imperturbable Grant, biting the end of a cigar, seized a red-ink pen and wrote across the face of his former note:—"Make a vacancy, or I will!"

"Take that and bring the answer."

Yet again did the young man return unsuccessful. The President obtained temporary employment for his friend, taking him in person to another department, and awaited the Cabinet meeting the following day. Here the President seemed as quietly imperturbable as a sphynx. As the members left the room the President followed Secretary —— to the door, and said: "By the way, Mr. Secretary, who would you recommend for your successor?" The astonished gentleman replied, and, passing to another department, wrote a hasty resignation and sent it in. He was relieved of his portfolio the following day,

That young man made excellent use the faith shown in him by this wonderful judge of character, and rose to a position of eminent usefulness and respectability, which he occupies to-day in one of the largest cities in our land. So did the friendless stranger win his place and the Honorable Secretary lose his, because the warrior chief had traced his course in lurid characters, not with sword tip but with pen, "make a vacancy, or I will;" and now, as of yore, to say was to do, and the man who "would fight it out on this line," etc., undeviatingly kept his word.—Washington Republic.

In the new armory of the First Light Infantry Regiment of Rhode Island, at Providence, is preserved an order from Israel Putnam to his commissary, dated July 28, 1775: "SIR—Please deliver to the bearer hereof two tons of bread to some Rod Islanders, as they came from Roxbury yesterday, and have nothing to eat." From which it is plain that old Put couldn't spell as well as he could fight.

"I don't believe in these secret societies," said one Galveston lady to another.—"That's a very singular," replied the another. "Your husband is a Forester, a Knight of Pythias and a Knight of Honor, and you will have at least $10,000 when he dies." "But what good does all that do me," was the tearful response, "when he never dies?" and the poor creature burst into tears.—Galveston News.

A gentleman who is fond of horses attended church recently where there is a somewhat prolonged service before they come to the sermon. "How were you pleased with the service?" asked a friend. "Oh, very much though it did strike me that there was a good deal of scoring before they got off."

"Etiquette," writes to us to inquire if in our opinion it would be proper for him to support a young lady if she was taken with a faint—even if he hadn't been introduced. Proper, young man, prop her by all means.

When Tommy puts a piece of Johnny cake in his pocket for lunch, he calls it an Indian reservation.

TEARS, IDLE TEARS.

Tears, chemically considered, are a weak solution of chloride of sodium and phosphate of lime. Poetically considered, they are drops splashed into the eyes from the deep wells of the soul, into which a weight has fallen. Physiologically, they are the overflow of the lachrymal glands, caused by the contraction of certain muscles.

It is our present purpose to consider them as a weapon of attack and defense.

They are the last resort of the gentler sex, the emotional "last ditch," as it were. To use them with effect, therefore, requires a certain amount of judgment. They should not be lightly resorted to. If a lady appeals to these moist arguments too often they lose their virtue. They simply become a damp nuisance. Another important requisite is that they should be used æsthetically.

It is a theory that tears, pearly tears, flow down the cheeks, but in practice it is found that they usually dripple down the nose The eyes get red and the nose sympathizes with the general moisture, and gets a sort of red look on the end.

It may be laid down as a rule that the woman who uses her handkerchief at this moment is lost. The dignity and effectiveness of tears is gone as soon as the mopping business begin. A light hysterical sniffle may be permitted if artistically executed with a gasp or a sob, but no polishing off of the eyelids or proboscis is admissible.

The best way is to hold the head erect, look the cruel tyrant in the face, and let the tears flow down while the lips feign a smile. If the head is bent forward the tears will run down the nose and drip off the end, and that spoils the effect.

Let us, for exumple, suppose that the fair operator wants a spring bonnet. The stern and heartless tyrant refuses, and even speaks in an unfeeling manner about the balls. The skillful practitioneress will not sulk or complain. She will look up at him amilingly and pleadingly, and softly remark that she will continue to wear her old Winter's bonnet. Then her chin will twitch and a slight tremor will be heard in her voice, and tears, idle tears, will flow, one by one dowh her cheeks. Thereupon the stern tyrant opens his pocket-book.

Sol Smith Russell tells the following story of his experience as an entertainer:—At a small Ohio town, where he had given his performance the previous night, he met at the depot the following morning an elderly granger, who, while he peacefully munched a huge quid of tobacco intently eyed the humorist and finally said: "Say, mister, hen't you the fellow wot gin the show up to Smoot's Hall last night?"—"Yes," replied Russell, "I did give an entertainment at Smoot's Hall last night?" "Wall, I thought you was the chap. I wanted to tell you 'bout a boy of mine; you ought to have him: he's just the fellow for your show; he's the d—dest fool I ever see."

PUMPKIN PIE.—Josh Billings tells us the story in his quaint style, as follows: "This delitesome work uv art is a conglomerashun ov baked doe and biled punkin. It waz diskovered in 1680, by Angelica, wife of Rhehobnam, then residing in the town of Nu Guilford, State of Mass., but since departed this life. Peace tew her dusts.—Thi pi soon after its diskovery went into general use and waz the boss pi for over one hundred years. In the year 1833 it waz totally lost. Sum poor imitashuns ov the blessed old original pi are still loafing around, but punkin pi as it waz, (with nutmegs into it) iz no more."

About twenty-five years ago the British Government sent a circular to the different boroughs in England asking for information upon a number of statistical questions. Among these was the following: "Is there any unusual custom prevalent in your borough?" To this a borough in the southeastern part of England replied: "Yes; the authorities sup together twice a year and pay for it themselves."

There are none as deaf as those who won't hear. "Father," said a young reprobate, pitching his voice so the old gentleman would be sure to hear, "let me have one hundred dollars?" "Eh?" said the parent, inclining his ear. "Let me have two hundred dollars?" "I heard you quite distinctly, the first time, my son, quite distinctly."

The farmer who has a neat and well kept garden is almost sure to have a neat and well kept farm, a comfortable and well appointed home, tidy out buildings and stock in good condition; and the housewife who takes pride in her garden generally has a home to take pride in and to be proud of.

Some wag in Chio, it is said, telegraphed to President Hayes: "Please do not appoint any more officers from this State just at present. We would like to get a quorum in the Legislature."

Edison has dropped his electric light and is now experimenting to see if a cow cannot be made to give ice-cream by wrapping her in congealed water before milking.

A gun is loaded with powder; a table is loaded with the delicacies of the season. Both go off, and both kill.

The last words of a dying photographer: "Now, keep very still."

SENSATIONS OF FREEZING.

The sensations of freezing are thus described by a man who nearly perished from cold in Leadville, Colorado: "I was three miles up the gulch, looking after some prospect holes I had up there, and didn't start for home until quite late. I had no more than started when the snow began to fall, and in 15 minutes the storm was in full fury. I knew the way well, but the snow fell so thick and fast that all landmarks were soon blotted out, and it was utterly impossible to see more than 20 feet before one's face. After wandering blindly on for half an hour, the extremely rough and rocky nature of the path gave me warning that I had strayed far from the proper route. Up to this I had forced persistently ahead, but there I stopped, my back to the gusty wind, and tried to calmly consider my situation. Taking the extreme supposition that I had walked in an exactly opposite direction from the right one, I could not be over four miles from home; but in the blinding storm I had no assurance whether I would be right in walking back or forward, right or left, but finally a random chose the first and continued my journey straight ahead. Up to this time I had felt no cold; but when I stopped to think, the warmth created by my active exertions died away and I began to feel severely the biting air. Besides this the temperature plainly falling lower and my warm breath began to congeal in brittle icicles in my beard and on my scarf, just in front of my mouth. Still I walked briskly on, but somehow my utmost exertions failed to circulate my blood and warm me as before. Ten minutes later I began to feel stinging pains in my feet and hands, and the numbness that invariably follows extreme cold. It was about this time that I noticed that my eyes seemed swollen and the lids so heavy that I had difficulty in opening them.

When they were closed, a constant succession of brilliant lights flashed before me, and presently these lights began to appear when they were open. In every direction I seemed to see them—green, purple, red, blue and golden—until with difficulty I could trace the outline of my hand as I held it before my face. If I staggered before, I reeled blindly now, and when I pressed my benumbed fingers to my face I found it covered with frozen tears. By this time the pain in my limbs and feet had grown to the most intense agony. The prickling sensation felt at first was gone now, and in its place a long, steady, keen pain, as if from a great open wound. At one time I groped my way to a sheltered place beneath some rocks and pulled my mittens off in a vain attempt to warm my hands by friction. The flesh was perfectly livid and blue in places, as if it had already begun to decompose. The nails were deep blue, and quantities of blood seemed to have settled directly beneath them. Finding it impossible to create any warmth, I rose to my feet and walked on, resolved to die, if die I must, in a desperate struggle

The prismatic colors had now faded before my eyes to long parallel bars that seemed to stretch from the horizon. As I walked faster I noted, too, with joy, that the pain in my feet was not nearly so intense as before. I attributed this to the rapid circulation of the blood, but was sadly deceived, for when I stooped down and touched my foot it responded no more to the fingers than a block of marble. It was practically dead. Up to this time my mental sufferings equaled my physical, but with my stiffening body my mind seemed to grow dull and torpid too. Presently I felt no more pain, and a heavy and drowsy sensation substituted itself. This grew stronger, and I felt as though it would be heaven itself to sink down into one of the snow-drifts and go to sleep. A most delicious sense of lassitude and tired ease began to creep over me, and it seemed as if the warm breath of Summer were playing in my face. I knew dimly and vaguely, as one knows things in a dream, that I was freezing to death, but no care or anxiety about it whatever. My outstretched hands struck against something. It was the door of a cabin—my own, although I did not know it—falling in, I rolled upon the floor. The next thing I remember was a sense of awful pain, and, opening my eyes, I could see people rubbing me with snow, and screamed and begged them to desist. The pain grew keener and more intense, and it seemed as if my whole frame was being rasped apart. I felt this pain for days.—The doctors said that ten short minutes more would have made me a frozen corpse.

THE QUESTION SETTLED.—Two young heirs who had been taking their last lesson in grammar disputed long and earnestly over a question, and at last agreed to decide it by arbitration, selecting the head of the head of the house as arbiter, with full power to send for persons and papers.—The old man was greasing his boots at the kitchen stove,

"Father," said the elder heir, "is it proper to say 'we is rich,' or 'we am rich?'

The old man worked carefully down into the hollow of his boots under the instep, remaining a long time in thoughtful meditation, and then softly replied:

"Well, I say it would come nigher to the truth to say we haint rich."

The man who makes a good off-hand speech is usually the man who has a good speech on hand.

Invite Garfield.

General Garfield is said to be the first active Knight Templar who has ever been elected President. As the next Triennial Conclave is to be held at San Francisco in 1883, for which the Eastern Knights are making great preparations, a large number of Commanderies intending to visit this coast on that occasion, we suggest to the Grand Commandery of California the propriety of inviting General Garfield to visit California at that time.

The Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of this State has already received information that Detroit Commandery, No. 1 will attend the Conclave, in 1883, with 100 swords, and Hauselman Commandery, of Cincinnati, with 150 swords, will also come. One of the large Wisconsin Commanderies have inaugurated a plan for raising a special fund for the expenses of a trip to this coast, and the Marysville Commandery are collecting for the purpose of receiving their Wisconsin brethren.

There is considerable talk of an extra session of Congress, as it is almost impossible for the present Congress to get through with the work now before it before the 4th of March, and many important bills have hardly been referred to as yet. The Democratic majority has frittered away too much time over Electoral count resolutions and kindred bosh.

Congress has authorized the President to invite the Government and people of France to join the Government and people of this country in celebrating the centennial surrender of Cornwallis. France will send a fleet and a regiment of troops to this country in honor of that event.

Rev. James M. Ludden, of St. John's Catholic Church at Utica, New York, has created a sensation by refusing to administer the last sacraments to the dying Charles Brennan, because Brennan's father refused to hire a pew in St. John's Church.

It is said that since Victorio started out two years ago, with his handful of followers, the savages have killed six hundred persons and destroyed stock and property to the amount of $3,000,000 in New Mexico.

It is said that thieves entered the room of Minister Henry W. Hillard, in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, recently, chloroformed him, and robbed him of over $5,000 in money, his watch, jewelry, clothing, etc.

Professor Nordenskjold contemplates another Arctic expedition in the coming Summer, and his ship is being built. Then it will be in order to send out another expedition to hunt for him.

Two young men of Monteville, Conn., are making preparations to start from there as soon as Spring opens for a bicycle race to San Francisco.

Out of 3,595 teachers in California it is said but 463 are Normal School graduates, and 199 of these graduated in some other State than California.

The latest petrified fraud is a big snake, baked out of fire clay and then dug up near Fulton, N. Y., on Big Island, in Oswego River.

The Colorado Legislature has refused to extend the suffrage to women. The members should be well Caudle-lectured for their unfeeling conduct.

General Miller, our Senator elect, while on his way to Washington, stopped at Mentor and had a four hours' confab with Garfield.

There is very little snow in the mountains of Kern, and the water supply is going to be short the latter part of the season.

A baby carriage factory has been started in Oakland. The climate of California is congenial to such an enterprise.

Henri Lezeret, the French explorer in Africa, and all his suite, have been murdered by the Gollos tribes.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road is to be ready for business about the 15th of March.

Charles W. Rand, a pioneer, and formerly U. S. Marshal of the District of California, died at Oakland on Sunday last.

A convent school is to be built at Ukiah by a number of Sisters of Mercy, who are coming from New Orleans in the Spring.

It costs the enormous sum of $193,279 63 to make the assessment of property in San Francisco for State and county taxes.

A stallion race for a purse of $10,000 is to come off at Boston in September next.

THE LEGISLATURE.

If there is a redeeming feature in that abomination—the new Constitution, it is the limit of the Legislative sessions to sixty days. The records evidence that the yearly sessions of one hundred and twenty days did not suffice for the business laid out by its members; and the same condition would exist now were the Legislature allowed unlimited time. It would have been well had the Legislature met but once in a decade. The people are disgusted with this continual tinkering with the laws.

Only ten working days remain of the session and yet on the 7th instant the first bill from the Assembly was signed by the Governor—one of six hundred introduced. The Senate makes a better showing, but hundreds of its bills will not be reached. To print the bills of both branches required eighty compositors, and the pay roll amounted to two thousand dollars per week. There has been too much talk, more than many of the propositions merited, for instance: for two hours the Senate discussed as to a third class county having three or five Supervisors, and considerable time was consumed about charging for a marriage license, and so it runs during the entire session. It looks very much like a bid for an extra session, but Governor Perkins says he will not call one. Let us be thankful!

Superior Judge Bill.—The following is the full text of the bill introduced by our Assembly an Jo Wa on:

Sec. 1. Superior Judges shall reside at the county seats of the respective counties for which they shall be elected or appointed, and their respective Courts shall always be open, legal holidays and non-judicial days excepted.

Sec. 2. No Superior Judge shall absent himself from the county for which he is elected or appointed for more than fifteen consecutive days, without procuring a Superior Judge of another county to Lold Superior Court in his stead in the county for which he is so elected or appointed during the period of such absence; and any Superior Judge so absenting himself from the county for which he is elected or appointed shall be deemed to have forfeited his office, and it shall be the duty of the Governor to immediately appoint a successor to fill any vacancy in office so arising, upon the fact of such absence being certified to him under seal by the Board of Supervisors of such county.

Sec. 3. No Superior Judge shall be allowed or shall receive any salary or compensation as such Judge for any period for which he may absent himself from the county for which he is elected or appointed unless he shall during such period procure a Superior Judge of another county to hold Superior Court in his stead in such county for which he is elected or appointed.

The operations of such a law would cause a commotion in every county in the State. The taking of a Judge from Alpine county for Mono would necessitate the drawing from another county to supply Alpine, and so the pull would have to continue without a break—a judicial hoop; for the Judge must be taken from another county. However, as the bill is low on the file and been reported against, it will not pass.

Credit in Bodie.—The Free Press complaining of tight times at the Metropolis of Mono, reminds us of a ludicrous incident—the effects of credit which lately occurred not a thousand miles from Bodie.—Commencing with eleven head of beef cattle, a butcher speedily disposed of them from the block, and—retired from business, not having money enough to buy another head.

Home Again.—George B. Day and wife have returned from the East, whither they went to remain until May next. They are glad to get back to the orange groves of Bridgeport; being disgusted with mountains of snow and steady cold weather.

To be Straightened.—The road leading to Antelope Valley is to be cut through and straightened between Sidney Huntoon's house and W. T. Elliott's ranch. This alteration will save half a mile in a distance of two miles. A much needed cut-off.

Headlight Delinquent.—Among our new advertisements will be found the delinquent list of the Headlight Mining Company, of Lake District. The sale of the delinquent stock will take place March 7th.

Mad Dog.—This week Bridgeport boasts of a case of hydrophobia. A dog belonging to John Lynch was shot to death on Monday last, having exhibited unmistakable evidence of hydrophobia.

Settled.—Treasurer Tinkum has made his quarterly settlement with the State, and paid into the State Treasury $12,972 72.

Will Accept.—The Board of Supervisors will meet on March 15th, to accept the new Court House.

Peaches are in bloom at San Bernardino, and plums and almonds at Niles, Alameda county. This is cheerful reading for Bodieites.

It is pretty well settled among the knowing ones that Senator Mahone, of Virginia, will act with the Republicans.

The Royal assent has been given to Canadian Pacific Railroad bill, and it is now a law.

Appointment.—The Board of Supervisors has appointed John A. McQuaid to the position of special counsel for the county, at a salary of $200 per month and an office in the Court House. This is a good appointment—one fit to be made. But, in this connection, it may be well to say that the county officials ought to be well-versed in all duties which required legal advice. We have no complaint against members of the Bar who were employed to advise the officers, for business is business But the records show that during the past twelve months $3,154 80 have been paid by the county for legal services outside of the District Attorney. Of the many employed, one is a resident of Carson City, and his share from the flesh-pot of Egypt was the modest sum of $1,141, exclusive of board, extra carriage hire and livery. The services of good lawyers could have been secured at home and the numerous stage fares between Carson and Bridgeport saved to the county. In due time we will show that the new Court House is not alone responsible for high taxes.

Death of Fernando Wood.

On Monday last Fernando Wood departed this life. Wood was born in Philadelphia in 1812, and from the employment of a cigar maker, he rose to a counting house clerk, and was for many years a shipowner and merchant of New York. He was a Representative in Congress from New York from 1841 to 1843, and was elected Mayor of New York in 1854, and was re-elected. In 1862 he was again elected to Congress, and so continued until his death. He was an uncompromising Democrat, and favored the rebellion. In 1848 he fitted out the bark John W. Carter for California, which venture was very successful, enabling him to retire from business.

Governor Crittenden, of Missouri, recommends a constitutional amendment to permit of a general registration law as the surest way to stamp out illegal voting. This is a singular recommendation to come from a Southern Democratic Governor, for have not the Democratic papers of the whole country been ringing it in our ears, that there have been no frauds in the South at elections, and as none but Democrats are elected to office in those States, who commit election frauds, and for what purpose?

The big iron hub for the Yellow Jacket weighs 21 tons, and is so large that it could not pass through the railroad tunnel at Gold Hill. Forty-two horses were required to haul the truck on which it was placed up the hill to the Divide, when 22 of the horses were taken off. The casting was taken to the railroad depot in Virginia and placed on a car and taken to the Jacket works.—In order to get it through the Virginia tunnel it was necessary to remove three sets of timbers from the south end!
